The latest seascapes displayed in the gallery are small, affordable works on paper. Showing the beautiful spring light and movement over the shore, they are inspired by time spent walking along the sandy beach during late winter and early spring. They reflect the cool weather and the kinds of tides found during this time of year.

I find the light, rhythms, movement and patterns of nature very inspiring and they present an irresistible challenge to try and capture them in paint.

Watercolour is my choice of medium for these pictures, as I love its fluidity and beautiful subtlety. I find joy in using water-based paint to capture the water and light of the subject and to suggest the atmosphere out on the sands by the sea.

I hope you will enjoy the new artworks and please get in touch if you'd like to know more.
